14 "MASTER MINDS" MEET TO DRAFT PLATFORM FOR PARTY

Opponents of City Tax Measure Answer Their Critics Among Council

Claim Property Tax Is Only Fair Method; No Action Is Planned at Present

The words of criticism spoken by councilmen at their last regular meeting toward those who signed the referendum petition to delay the occupational tax ordinance recently passed by council, today elicited replies from several signers. Opinions of two of them are to be seen in the People's Forum of today's issue, in which they claim council is on the wrong track.

R. B. McDermott, local attorney and leading member of the faction opposing the tax measure, declared this forenoon that no further plan of procedure for the present on their part has been made, when asked what next move they intend to make, if any. He intimated that something might be done before the time set for the collection of the tax, between July 15 and 20, but declared that he could give no information at this time.

It is the contention of council that their opponents only recouse is thru the courts, and it is their belief that nothing of this kind will be attempted.

McDermott still maintains that council should have had enough foresight early in the year to have urged a re-appraisal. He insists that they well knew the condition they were running into, and that had they put forth some effort it would have resulted in a re-valuation of the real property of the city and the present trouble would have been averted. A re-valuation in this city, he contends,

BLANKS FOR BONUS ARE RECEIVED

Two Meetings Arranged by Legion to Aid Veterans in Filling Them Out

Blanks to be used by World War veterans in applying for their adjusted compensation have been received by the local post of the American Legion, and two meetings in which the veterans will be instructed in the method of filling them out, have been arranged.

The first meeting will be held Friday evening in the Legion headquarters. At that time full instructions for the handling of the blanks and the taking of fingerprints will be given to Legion members.

On Wednesday evening, July 2, there will be a mass meeting for all the veterans in the county. That evening the Legion members who have received instructions previously, will teach the other veterans.

The need for filling the applications as soon as possible is emphasized.

SAYS M'ADOO DESERVES TO TAKE OFFICE

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 25.—William McAdoo was proposed to the Democratic national convention here today as the natural heir to Woodrow Wilson's political assets. He was thus described by Senator James D. Phelan, of California, who formally placed his name in nomination as a candidate for the presidency.

"We honor our president (Wilson) who left a great heritage of character and achievement to the Democracy," said Senator Phelan, "but we shall not forget the toiler by his side, the inspirer of ideas and the doer of things, the great secretary of the treasury in the most exacting and soul-testing administration since Lincoln's."

"It was he who, during the most critical period in our history, assumed task after task indefatigably and enthusiastically and on whose competent shoulders were borne bravely and triumphantly the burdens of that day."

SUITS FILED TO BREAK UP OIL MONOPOLY

Attorney General Stone Begins Litigation Against Standard Oil Companies

CONTROL PRODUCTION

Action Described as Among Most Important in Last Quarter of Century

WASHINGTON, June 25.—In a gigantic effort to break the alleged control of the Standard Oil Co. over gasoline and oil prices in the United States, the federal government today charged 30 of the country's great oil companies with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and asked the district court at Chicago to enjoin them from further violations.

The suits were filed under the direction of Attorney General Stone on the basis of an investigation conducted by the federal trade commission. The litigation thus started by the government is regarded by officials of the department of justice as among the most important that has been undertaken during the past quarter of a century.

The companies named in the bill include the Standard Oil of (Continued on Page Five)

Find Home Brew in Car Stopped at W. Lafayette

Two men, both of Steubenville were arrested in West Lafayette Tuesday night about 10.30 and arraigned on liquor law violation charges. Their names could not be learned Wednesday.

When the car in which they were riding was searched, a quantity of home brew was found.

The driver of the car pleaded guilty to charges of possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor, and his companion pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving intoxicating liquor. Fines of $100 were assessed on each charge. The men made arrangements to pay their fines, and were released.

BOY'S TRAINING SAVES SCOUTMASTER WHEN AN ARTERY IS CUT BY SAW

The victim of a serious accident, Jack Hammill local Boy Scout executive, Tuesday morning became the patient of one of his own first aid students.

While working with a cross-cut saw at the Boy Scout camp near Orange Tuesday morning Hammill's hand slipped, and an artery in his right wrist was severed. The resulting loss of blood was so great that he nearly fainted.

Frank Games, an Eagle Scout of Troop 2, making use of the first aid training he has received as a Boy Scout, applied a tourniquet to the blood vessel above the cut, stopped the flow of blood, bandaged the wound, and brot Hammill to Coshocton, where a physician dressed the injury.

But for the action of the Scout, the injury might have proved fatal. With his loss of consciousness, Hammill would have lost his ability to care for his injury himself, and in a few minutes the continued loss of blood could have become exceedingly serious.

M'ADOO-SMITH RACE HEATED; FIGHT GROWS

Other Candidates Gain as Result of Bitter Struggle Between Two Leaders

FORESEE DEADLOCK

Influence of William Jennings Bryan Is Felt in Battle for Nominee

NEW YORK, June 25.—The Democratic national convention went into its second session today with the roar of conflict getting louder every minute.

While the platform builders stripped down for a lengthy and heated fight over the controversial issues presented by the Ku Klux Klan and the League of Nations, the candidates' arena became crowded with gesticulating butlers attracted there and held by the one indisputable fact thus far developed—that this nomination has become a free-for-all and is anybody's fight.

Thruout a hectic day and night of conferences and struggle, the McAdoo and Smith contest changed but little, and the Davis and Ralston booms progressed slightly because of the seeming hope.

Case Is Dropped and Settlement of Damages Made

After agreeing to settle for damages done when his car struck the one driven by Hurler Burkheimer on the West Lafayette road near the Norman farm early Monday morning, John Butler of Lewisville was released from the custody of Mayor M. C. Wood's court in West Lafayette without a charge being read.

Mayor Woods said Wednesday that there was no evidence to show that Butler had been driving recklessly. Butler was unable to explain just how the accident happened, but a satisfactory settlement of the damage costs was arranged between him and Burkheimer, and the case was dropped.

Martha Norris Called by Death

Miss Martha Norris, 67, died at her home, 309 South Seventh-st., Tuesday night at 11:45, from a complication of diseases from which she had suffered for the past five weeks.

For 22 years previous to her death Martha Norris had been a faithful employee at what is now the McKewen-Settle Company.

She was a member of the First Baptist church, of this city.

One sister, Amanda Norris, of the home, two nieces, Mrs. Milton Wright, of West Carlisle, and Mrs. Oscar Clark, 715 South Sixth-st., one great nephew, Russell Clark, of the home, and one great niece, Mrs. Harry Coulson, of San Francisco, are the only surviving relatives.

Funeral services will be held at the late home, Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in charge of Rev. W. M. Hart, of the local Baptist church, and Rev. I. M. McVey, of the M. P. church. Burial in South Lawn cemetery.

The pall bearers are B. C. Senter, H. J. Robison, T. G. Robison, Joseph McKewen, Charles Settle and Harry Hawkins.

AUTO TAG REVENUE GREATER

County's Share this Year to Be $17,602.42, Nearly Double Last Year's Sum

Coshocton-co's share of the road funds available by the money collected for automobile license tags has already amounted to nearly double the money received from that source last year, according to a statement from the office of Secretary of State Brown.

Several distributions of the money to the various counties have already been made by the state department, and another is to be made Thursday.

The Coshocton-co voucher will be for $2,182.99, bringing the total for this year up to $17,602.42. During the whole of last year, but $9,607.133 was received here.

The amount distributed over the state so far this year is $4,165,729.46 as against $2,235,450.46 distributed up to the same date last year. The money can be used only on streets or roads that have been improved.

UNDERWOOD NAMED BY JOHNSTON

NEW YORK, June 25.—The United States is face to face with "a crisis in public morals" and the man to meet this crisis and "to restore to the people deserved confidence in their public concerns," is "the senior counselor of the Democratic party" Senator Oscar Underwood, declared Forney Johnston, of Birmingham, Ala., today, placing in nomination for the presidency the senior senator from Alabama.

Johnston stressed "betrayal of responsibility" and charged that "the scandals of the present regime are still unplumbed, uncharted, unpunished and unrepented."

It behooves the Democratic party to select a man of such character that "neither Wall Street nor main street, boulevard or alley, dare impeach his character," the speaker declared and urged that Senator Underwood is of such a character.

The nominator stated that Senator Underwood opposes the Ku Klux Klan and "any organization which accomplishes by secret action that which would be unlawful if attempted by the state or federal legislature."

Johnston declared the senator's public service and declared him worthy to take up the mantle of Woodrow Wilson.

1.—Repeal of anti-trust legislation and "enactment of legislation that will provide regulation in public interest and legalize organization as well as the constructive activities of trade associations."

2.—Ratification of the child labor constitutional amendment.

3.—Repeal of the labor clauses of the transportation act of 1920.

4.—Full rehabilitation of all injured in the service during the World war.

5.—Amendment of the Volstead act to permit manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent beer and light wines.

6.—Enactment of a constitutional amendment, enabling congress to re-enact by two-thirds vote any measure declared unconstitutional by the supreme court.

7.—Membership in the league of nations and participation in the world court.

8.—Prohibition of the use of the injunction in settling labor disputes.

9.—Recognition of the right of workers to join trade unions for the "protection and advancement."

Bitterest Factional Fight in History of Party Will Be Over Those Two Issues

BY WM. K. HUTCHINSON
Copyright 1924 by I. N. S.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The fate of the Democratic party in the 1924 campaign was virtually at stake today when an inner circle of "master minds" met to draft an official platform, for submission to the national convention.

The platform conferees faced one of the bitterest factional fights in the history of the party over the adoption of Ku Klux Klan and league of nations planks. All hope of settling the issues peacefully in secret session was abandoned after the opposing factions formally served notice they would carry their fight to the convention floor if defeated in the committee deliberations. The actual drafting of the official platform was given over to the 14 party chieftains by the full platform committee. Their recommendations must first pass the test of the full committee before a final verdict is rendered by the convention itself.

The conferees were Homer L. Cummings, Connecticut, chairman, William Jennings Bryan, Florida, William H. O'Brien, Indiana, W. A. Ayres, Kansas, Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Nebraska, Senator Key Pittman, Nevada, Joseph A. Kelloff, New York, Newton D. Baker, Ohio, Senator Robert L. Owen, Oklahoma, and Finis J. Garrett, Tennessee, minority leader.

Labor Program Introduced by Sam'l Gompers

NEW YORK, June 25.—Labor progressive program, stressing membership in the league of nations, and adherence in the world court, was presented to the platform sub-committee of the Democratic national convention today by Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L.

Gompers, just out of a sick bed, was accompanied to the hearing by a nurse. Chief planks urged by Gompers as "imperative" to labor were:

Brough Names Sen. Robinson

NEW YORK, June 25.—Praised as a tried candidate who could unite all factions of the Democratic party, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, was placed in nomination for president today by former Governor Charles F. Brough, of Arkansas.

Brough said that during the World war, Senator Robinson "stood as a rock of Gibraltar in his support of the constructive and progressive policies of the late President Wilson."

Senator Robinson was pictured as a "Twentieth century crusader for the immortal principles of Democracy and Americanism."

referendum, as it was before, and it will go into effect in July, councilmen said last night, and they professed to have had the advice of attorneys, both local and out-of-town, that their action was legally sound. They say that the only hope of their opponents now is to take it to court, and this, they believe, will not be done.

With the exception of the two changes named, the ordinance remains the same as it was before.

Had members of the opposing faction been present last night they would have heard some harsh words of criticism voiced by council members. Since the referendum was filed last Saturday morning they have said but little, but last night they gave vent to their feelings freely.

Since President E. S. Gaumer returned last Friday, after having been out of town for more than a week, he and the council have been working hard to find a way to get back at "the 10 per cent."

After much consultation with attorneys, Harry Lybarger, city solicitor, was ordered to prepare the repealing ordinance.

Councilmen explained last night why the emergency clause was not included in the ordinance when it was first passed. It was not added for the reason that council wanted to play fair with the citizens, then stated. The proposition they believed, was so well "sold," and the people so well understood the urgent need of funds, that it was that not advisable to use the emergency clause as a club over the heads of the citizens. Another reason given was that it would save unnecessary expense of publishing, etc., each year.

In presenting the repealing ordinance to council, Adolph Sahling of the finance committee declared, "The fact that a referendum has been filed on the measure upon which council put so much work, and the main reason for filing seeming to be that it contained no emergency clause, the committee has seen fit to present a measure repealing the occupational tax ordinance.

"I am surprised to find that men who formerly were attached to the city government signed the referendum petition. It does not show good citizenship. They have not the welfare of the city at heart. There was no sincerity in the filing of the petition."

When he presented the revised ordinance, Councilman Sahling declared, "It being absolutely necessary to increase revenue in order to operate all departments of the city in such a manner as to provide for the safety and peace of the residents of our city, the present income being inadequate and the council having pledged not to borrow one penny of money, the committee is presenting the ordinance passed on May 19, with a few changes."

Similar talks were given by other councilmen. "This is not a surprise to me," said Johnson Smith. "I expected a referendum to be filed. There is always someone in the community who would have something to say against anything we would propose. Their idea, in the first place, is unfounded. The council worked hard to bring the city out of the financial hole, and no good citizen, knowing the situation, would have raised a hand to hinder the council's work. I am pleased to know that we have only a few people who are not 'white'."

"I feel," Smith said further, "that even those who signed will feel ashamed of themselves and will express themselves as such. I would like to have some of the signers present tonight."

"I do not believe those who signed the petition will have any objection to the ordinance as it now stands," Councilman Harry Richards asserted.

Councilman Walter Fitch said, "The people did not thoroughly understand the ordinance or they would not have objected. Some did not know what they were signing."

Councilman Adolph Sahling—"Anyone who can read can see that the laboring man will not be forced to bear any of the burden under this ordinance. One objection of the laborer seems to be that while they will not pay the tax directly, they will pay it indirectly thru the increased cost of merchandise. This objection has no grounds. I do not believe any merchant would increase the price of his goods to take care of the tax. Even if he would the increase would be so slight it would not be noticed."

"In looking over the petition, I noticed that a small percentage of the signers will have the tax to pay. I can't understand such citizenship."

"I will venture to say," said Councilman J. Wesley Clark, "that not more than 15 per cent of the voters of Coshocton have read the ordinance as published. Their arguments are easy to tear to pieces, because they do not understand the tax measure. They think that any fund can be used for any purpose. FeFw know what the sinking fund is. When I asked one person, his answer would indicate that he thought the sinking fund was for the purpose of taking care of the cost of laying pipe lines over the city."

"I believe the persons who started the referendum petition, and those who signed it, did not know what they were doing," Councilman R. M. Eckels said.

President Gaumer said, "I take exceptions to the reasons offered by the attorney who started this referendum. The contention that it is a scheme to aid tax dodgers, is founded on sand. This council has nothing to do with the listing of personal property and the placing of value on real estate. No one had a single thought to protect those citizens who try to dodge taxes."

"They are not reasons. They are just excuses based, not on common sense but upon enmity. 'No one knows whether it will be necessary to renew the ordinance stand as it was. The petitioners for a referendum have only added another large expense. Responsibility for the extra expense rests on the 10 per cent who signed, not on the remaining 90 per cent.'

"We spent two and one-half months trying to sell the proposition to the public. I do not believe there is a man or woman over 21 years of age, in this city, but knows that we haven't the money. I regarded the emergency clause as inadvisable at first, because I viewed it as more or less of a club over the citizens of the city."

"I want to thank you for your hard work, and I believe the hounds will now leave the track and the citizens will be allowed to enjoy the peace and comfort they ought to enjoy."

Mr. Gaumer declared that ten per cent, the per cent of voters necessary to obtain a referendum on any bill, is too low. He expressed hope that it will be raised. The money from the occupational tax will be payable in semi-annual installments, in advance, between July 15 and 30, 1934, and January, 1935. It is estimated that it will cost $500 to collect the tax.

OTHER BUSINESS

Councilman Fitch of the street committee reported last night that rubbish is being thrown into a ditch on East Adams-st, from Fitch to Sixteenth-st causing it to overflow. It also clogs the sewer at that point, he said. A similar complaint from Highland Park on North Eighteenth-st was presented. Nothing was done with regard to the matter at last night's session.

An ordinance ordering the annexation of the Baker addition to the city was read by the clerk. It was referred to the street committee for further consideration.

An ordinance accepting the E. O. Selby addition, known as Grandview Place, was also referred to the street committee.

An ordinance to regulate the height of smoke stacks in the city was read and referred to the ordinance committee, which will report on its advisability at the next regular meeting.

The finance committee, it was decided, will meet with the city officials tonight to make out the budget for the next year. They will also take up the appropriation ordinance at this time.

last generation how many names would be encountered where financial losses were encountered—may, how many cases would be encountered in which health was wrecked and life actually shortened by partisan activities, with ingratitude often the final and only reward.

"Reflections of this sort probably were a large factor in the retirement of Major Charles W. Montgomery, Newark, who refused to stand for reelection as State Central Committeeman in the Seventh District. Montgomery waived on behalf of Charles R. Frederickson, Coshocton, business and civic leader. Frederickson has opposition, but not of a serious nature. Montgomery has been Chairman of the State Central Committee thru two terms. For a year and a half he has run state headquarters here and kept the party militant, paying the bills out of his pocket and holding the bag."

MILLER PAYS FINE OF $25

Chiropractors Ask for Their Own Examin'rs

COLUMBUS, June 24. — Initial steps to divorce the practice of chiropractics from regulation by the state medical board were gotten under way today with the filing of an initiative petition with Secretary of State Brown urging the next Ohio general assembly to create a separate state board of chiropractic examiners. The petition was filed by the Ohio branch of the Universal Chiropractors' Association thru Dr. C. E. Shling, Willard, O. The proposed legislation would provide for the formation of a board in Ohio to be composed of three members who practice chiropractics exclusively. They would be appointed by the governor.

Should the proposed bill be rejected by the general assembly, steps will be taken to have the issue placed on the ballot by virtue of the initiative and referendum, it was stated.

TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT
It may be all right for a wife to wander through her spouse's trousers pockets, bawl him out, mismanage him lovingly though slightly roughly, after they've sailed the stormy matrimonial seas together for many years. But when a woman produces a razor—and she isn't a barber either, mind you—and starts going through the motions of carving and then wields

Make Your Own BUG KILLER

P. D. Q.

You can easily make at home a full quart of the strongest bug-killer for 25c, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, moths and ants. This recipe will not burn, rot or stain clothing, and is entirely different from any other formula we know of, as this will kill the eggs.

Procure of your druggist a 35c package of (Pesty Devs Quietus) P. D. Q. then you will have the chemical made expressly to rid hotels, hospitals and dwellings of pesky bedbugs and other insects.

Impossible for the pesky devils to exist with the proper use of P. D. Q. P. D. Q. can be purchased in sealed bottles, double strength, liquid form. Sold by Siegrist & Williams Drug Co., and other leading druggists

DEFIANCE—The Northwestern Ohio Volunteer Firemen's association will hold its 52nd annual convention in 1925 at Defiance. It was decided by the 51st convention which closed here recently.

OTTAWA—Gov. Donahay will be asked to deliver the patriotic address at the Fourth of July celebration to be held in Columbus Grove, near here. A gigantic parade and a brilliant program are expected to prove outstanding features.

NELSONVILLE—Rev. John Lloyd Evans was ordained pastor of the Nelsonville Presbyterian church here last week and, to show his appreciation he got married the following day, taking for his bride the daughter of another Presbyterian minister. The ceremony was performed by the two brothers of the groom—yes, they're Presbyterian ministers too.

LOGAN—Hope is running high that many of the mines here which have been idle will be started up again soon. Union miners of the Hocking Valley coal field, now in a general state of suspension, voted in special convention to meet the coal operators in an effort to patch up differences so that idle mines can be put in operation again.

GLOUSTER—Glouster still is laboring under the shock of a double tragedy enacted here a few days ago. Mrs. Eliza Little, 65, started to a doctor's office to get medical aid for her sick grandchild. To lose no time she clambered aboard a truck bound for the doctor's neighborhood. Directly in front of the doctor's office she fell from the moving truck and was seriously injured. Next day the sick boy died. Two days later the aged grandmother died.

ATHENS—Ohio University here has a student pastor from Yale. He is Rev. Edwin A. Voight of New Haven, Conn., and takes the place of Dr. Charles M. Bond, resigned.

POMEROY—Investigators report that there is much suffering and hunger in homes of many of the miners of the Pomeroiy Bend who have been without work several months. Steps are under way to have the state start more road work so that the idle miners can be given a chance to earn something.

ELYSIA—H. W. McCool, train dispatcher on the western division of the Cleveland, Columbus and Southwestern Electric company for the past three years, has been promoted to the superintendency of the southern division with headquarters at Seville.

COLUMBUS—Ohio's new rural program, published by Ohio State University, will be available for distribution on July 1 in a 100-page pamphlet, the editors announce. It is free to any Ohioan who asks for it. Chock-full of timely and constructive information on all subjects pertinent to agriculture, the book is deemed very valuable in its field. More than six months were spent in compiling the data contained in the pamphlet.

SAID CAN'T BE DONE
"My experience with doctors and medicines caused me to lose faith in both, and when a friend told me that Mayr's Wonderful Remedy would cure my stomach trouble I told him 'it can't be done.' However, he finally persuaded me to try it and to my surprise it did. All symptoms of acute indigestion and gas having disappeared." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and alleviates inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

TEN INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

COLUMBUS, June 25 — Mrs. Rose Zoltz was in a serious condition today with her skull fractured and nine others were recovering from slight injuries received in an automobile collision here last night.

WOMEN A BUNDLE OF NERVES
"Everything irritates me,—I am a bundle of nerves, I ache all over and cannot sleep and am so dependent." This extract from a letter written by one woman to another describes the condition of many women who suffer from feminine ailments. Nothing will relieve this distressing condition so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs. For fifty years it has been restoring sick and ailing women of America to health and strength.

DON'T USE "MUSSY" SALVES FOR ECZEMA!

New Snow-White, Greaseless Treatment, Brings Quick Relief—Costs 35 Cents. Money Back If It Fails

Just because you suffer from itching Eczema or some other skin irritation, it isn't necessary to "daub" yourself all up with some greasy, "smelly" salve.

The new, better and most pleasant way is to use Noxzema, a snow-white, greaseless and stainless cream that penetrates at once and gives instant relief. Thousands of girls who are now free from Pimples and Rashies, use it regularly and their skin is as clear and velvety as that of a healthy child. The very first application "takes" out the "fire" and stops the itching, then the soreness and inflammation go and the first thing you know your troublesome skin irritation has entirely disappeared.

A generous trial size of Noxzema can be obtained from any druggist for 35 cents. Better try it tonight.

PICNIC AT NEWARK

Plans are being made for a big Fourth of July homecoming and picnic for residents and former residents of Newark. The outing will be held on the J. E. Cormican farm, on the Jacktown pike, two miles south of Newark. Every feature possible for entertainment, including dancing, baseball and racing, will be provided both day and night.

Beauty and Politics Do Not Conflict.

MRS. LE ROY SPRINGS

That beauty and politics do not conflict is strikingly proved by Mrs. LeRoy Springs, Democratic National Committeewoman from South Carolina, who was delegate-at-large from her State to the Democratic National Convention in New York City. Her husband also was a State delegate.

LAFOLLETTE IS FEAR OF DEMOCRATS

NEW YORK, June 25.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, is causing no end of worry for the chiefs of the Democratic national convention which assembled in open session today.

That the militant Wisconsin senator will enter the presidential race, his formal announcement as an independent candidate being expected after the "Big Four" brotherhoods convention in Cleveland July 4, is expressed as a fact in all quarters here. And this is the reason why LaFollette influence may be injected forcefully into the final reckonings at this convention.

The significance of LaFollette's entry into the white house sweepstakes and the influence it would have on the Democratic party, was called to the attention of the leaders by Senator Neely, (Democrat) of West Virginia, who is about the only West Virginian who is not showing for the candidacy of John W. Davis. Neely thinks Davis is "too reactionary."

"We must nominate a progressive Democrat if we are to hope for success next Fall," Neely said. "We must nominate a man who will cut heavily into the votes that would go to LaFollette if two conservative heads the Republican and Democratic tickets."

Neely suggested Ralston, of Indiana, and Robinson, of Arkansas, as two available "progressive Democrats."

FIGHT OVER TWO THIRDS RULE ENDED

The stir created in Democratic circles by pre-convention announcements that a bitter fight would be made to abolish the two thirds rule for nominating the president and vice-president subsided to little more than ripple on the surface today.

McAdoo forces, were the talk of abrogating the two thirds rule was most prevalent, came out flatly with the statement that they would not press the fight.

The Ku Klux Klan issue, meanwhile, continued to predominate in platform discussions. A power, full group of leaders, demanded that the convention go on record directly condemning the Klan by name. This proposal met with distinct opposition from another group of leaders which included William G. McAdoo, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas and William J. Bryan, who favored a strong plank guaranteeing religious freedom without mention of the Klan by name.

The unofficial plank, after declaring in favor of religious freedom continued—

"We declare that the state and church shall be and remain separate, and that there shall never be any religious test required as a qualification for any office or position of trust in the United States."

Bryan offered an anti-Klan plank which merely set forth that the Democratic party "reaffirms its devotion to the fundamental principles of the constitution," which in Self Poisoning Today's Danger!

Hurried and improper eating, nervous worry and lack of abdominal exercise clog up your system and poison your liver. The result is self poisoning. No longer can your liver do its work properly and the result is you wake up dull and tired, coated tongue, bad taste, and offensive breath. Often you suffer from loss of appetite, bad digestion, gas on a sour, weak stomach, improper movement of the bowels and a run-down condition of your whole system.

"Cleanse and tone your liver! Put your system in condition! Feel your very best again! Try just a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Liver and Blood Syrup after the next few meals and notice the quick improvement in the way you eat sleep and feel—the return of strength, vigor and energy. You will be completely satisfied. There will be no cost. Dr. Thomas' Liver & Blood Syrup is sold and recommended by Wimmer-Arnold and Page & Lorenz.

Powerful Antiseptic Destroys Pernicious Germs of Catarrh

No Matter How Chronic, Soreness Will Go—Mucous Will Disappear and the Nasal Passages Will Be Immaculately Clean Once More

Just get a six ounce bottle of Kojene, the world's most powerful, non-poisonous antiseptic. You can get it from Wimmer-Arnold Company or any progressive druggist for 50 cents.

Spray or sniff it into the nostrils, night and morning for a week or until the mucus has gone and the nostrils are clean and clear. That's all there is to it—if you really desire to get rid of obnoxious catarrh and the pernicious germs that cause it—start to-day.

If your Catarrh isn't gone in a week—get your money back. Kojene is four times as powerful as Carbolic Acid, yet you can drink it with no ill effects. Read the directions for Kojene should be greatly diluted before using—that's what makes it such an inexpensive antiseptic.

cludes religious freedom. There were indications the convention itself would favor the less drastic anti-Klan plank, owing to rumors of a threatened revolt among southern delegations.

The controversy over the league of nations issue, while of major proportions was not as serious as the Klan row. The fight to include a direct pronouncement in favor of American adherence to the league was championed chiefly by Senators Carter Glass and Claude A. Swanson, of Virginia, and Newton Baker, of Ohio, close personal friends of the late Woodrow Wilson.

Party leaders were adverse to reviewing the league issue altho favoring a strong plank calling for an international program which would guarantee a re-opening of European markets to American commerce.

It was generally believed the league issue would be defeated before the platform committee.

The official platform committee to be named today probably will hold its first session tomorrow morning. Its report, with the full 1924 platform, may not be completed until the end of the week.

FARM RELIEF BRINGS ON A NEW DISPUTE

NEW YORK, June 24—A new block to Democratic harmony in preparing the 1924 platform drifted out of the west today when an agriculture relief dispute was added to the bitter controversies already awaiting settlement by the official platform committee to be named by the convention during the day.

National leaders, however, were more hopeful of reaching a compromise with the westerners than of peacefully settling the league and Klan rows. Reports persisted that both the latter issues would

SPORTSMAN'S CORNER

COLUMBUS, O., June 25.—The splendid work of the League of Ohio Sportsmen in a program to make better hunting, better fishing and to carry on a state wide plan for reforestation, clean sportsmanship and conservation of natural resources, is attracting attention not only in Ohio, but throughout the nation. Sportsmen of other states are forming similar organizations and seeking advice from the League of Ohio Sportsmen headquarters in Ohio. The League urges that partisan politics be kept out of the management of the fish and game department and all conservant affairs at all times.

The organization is growing so rapidly in Ohio that its membership has jumped within the past two months from 116 chapters of affiliated sportsmen's associations, to 130, representing a membership of over 100,000. Branch organizations are located in nearly every county in Ohio, and some counties have several associations affiliated with the state organization.

Every dollar of sportsman's money which comes to the League for membership dues is spent in Ohio for the benefit of Ohio sportsmen. The official publication of the organization is "The Ohio Sportsman" published in Columbus whose circulation is growing with amazing rapidity. It is spoken of by the sportsmen state wide as a publication that is clean and wholesome.

The League is absolutely non-partisan in its work, and the political affiliations of Dr. K. V. James, prominent Cleveland sportsman and president of the League is unknown to even his closest friends. He declares that partisanship has no place among sportsmen or their activities.

The annual mid-summer convention to be held June 25th at Russell Point will be the largest assembly of sportsmen ever held in the middle West.

EASTERN OHIO LEAGUE MEETING TO BE HELD IN NEWARK THIS EVE.

Business of importance is to be discussed at a meeting of the representatives of Eastern Ohio League teams to be held in Newark Wednesday evening. Rosters of the men carried by each team are to be presented at that time. One of the rules of the league is to the effect that no team may carry more than 15 men, and some teams will have to be cut down to comply with this ruling, it is said.

The schedule for the second half of the season is also to be worked out at the meeting, and dates set for the playing of postponed games.

GREYS SIGN LEFTY KELLY

"Lefty" Kelly, former Akron hurler, who was recently released from the Coshocton Regulars team, has been signed to play with the Zanesville Greys, in the Eastern Ohio League.

It seems that Manager Walker of the Greys has been endeavoring to obtain Kelly's services all season, and an agreement was promptly reached when the southpaw was released by Coshocton.

Lewisville Wins from Lafayette

The Canal Lewisville Twilight League team stepped one round higher on the league ladder Tuesday evening when it defeated the West Lafayette team by a score of 12 to 3 on the West Lafayette diamond.

Tonight the Lewisville team will meet the Pastimes on the Red Sea diamond at Coshocton. The score for Tuesday evening's game, by innings:

TEN YEAR OLD BOY TO HAVE CHARGE OF CLAY MODELING AT SCOUT CAMP

Probably one of the youngest instructors in the United States, in any boy camp will be Junior Snyder, son of Seth Snyder, south Fourth-st, who will be instructor in clay modeling at the local Boy Scout Camp, Camp Onawama, near Orange.

Snyder, altho only ten years old, has been pronounced by art instructors, as a genius at clay modeling. One of the best things he has turned out is probably a bust of Lincoln, which is quite an ambitious project for one so young.

The Cubs at the camp the first period will be given a half hour each morning at this art, and the better projects will be baked at the Pope-Gosser China Co. The clay for the projects will be furnished by the Pope-Gosser Co. thru the courtesy of George Mitchell, president of the company and chairman of the Boy Scout camping committee.

Auto Racing to Be Started on Western Track

Ascot Speedway to Offer Prizes of $55,000 and Limit Entrants to 30

By COPELAND C. BURG

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—One of America's greatest thrill producers—automobile racing—is all set to stage a sensational comeback here.

At Ascot Speedway plans are being pushed to give the races staged Thanksgiving Day a proper setting to mark the return of road racing to California. The 250-mile classic will be raced over a five-mile course built to give speed and plenty of thrills.

Ralph De Palma, the veteran racing pilot, believes the course is one of the sportiest he has ever covered.

Starting from the backstretch of an earthen oval, the course leads over low hills above the track, and covers grades ranging from 2 to 30 per cent.

The finish sweeps around after several hairpin turns and leads into the straightaway in front of the grandstand. Racing fans will be able to watch the whole race, except for a few dips over the valleys formed by the hills, from one spot.

The new course will be ready for test runs late in June, and pilots' practice will start in October.

Cash prizes totaling $55,000 will be offered, divided among the first fifteen cars to finish. The winner will also receive the Ascot gold cup, to be an annual trophy held each year by the car making the best record. The winner's cash award will be $20,000.

The entry list will be limited to thirty cars.

Tagging The Bases

Winning their third straight from the Yankees, coupled with the double defeat administered the Tigers by the Browns, sent the Senators into first place in the American league race. The Yankees hold second place with a margin of seven points over the Tigers.

The Giants chalked up their tenth straight victory when they defeated the Dodgers and increased their lead to 2½ games over the Cubs, who were idle.

Wildness by the Athletics' pitchers, aided by timely hitting by the Red Sox, gave Boston a 4 to 1 victory.

A ninth inning rally netting two runs, gave the Braves a 4 to 2 victory over the Phillies.

Jacobson knocked out his eighth and ninth homer in the Browns' double victory over the Tigers.

After he had retired the first 23 batters to face him, Rixey weak-end and the Pirates came on to win 4 to 3, from the Reds.

Suits Filed

Indiana, Standard of New Jersey, Standard of California, Standard of Kansas, Standard of Louisiana, Standard of New York, Standard of Ohio, the Texas Co., the American Refining Co., the Aetna Refining Co., and 20 other great oil companies.

In explanation of the government's legal assault on the various Standard Oil companies, which were dissolved several years ago by the United States courts, the department of justice issued the following official statement:

"In bringing suit, Attorney General Stone, charging that all these great companies have combined to control the production of gasoline by a pool of asserted patent rights in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, named as the primary defendant, the Standard Oil Co., of Indiana, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Standard Development Co., Texas Co. and the Gasoline Products Co.

"In substance, the petition filed by the attorney general alleged that, due to the increased demand for gasoline, manufacturers of gasoline now utilize processes for cracking gasoline which increases the yield from a given amount of stock from 50 to 100 percent over the old methods of distillation.

"The attorney general charges that disclosure of this process was made in patents issued 60 years ago and long since expired, and that, while there now are no valid patents covering broadly the basic features of the process, the primary defendants have pooled a number of patents, covering unimportant developments relating thereto, and are seeking to extort huge sums from the manufacturers of gasoline in the guise of royalties and, by means of certain restrictive covenants contained in licensed agreements, to restrain and monopolize the interstate and foreign commerce in so-called cracked gasoline and other commodities produced by the cracking process."

er of the house. A second collaborating sub-committee, meeting jointly with the others, included Senator William H. King, Utah, chairman, Charles H. Mayer, Kansas, and Alfred Lucking, Michigan.

Settlement of the Klan issue was the biggest problem confronting the platform builders. One faction led by followers of Governor Al Smith of New York, Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, and George Brennan, political czar of Illinois, demanded a plank directly condemning the Ku Klux Klan by name and pledging the Democratic party to "oppose the activities of the Klan."

They declared they controlled sufficient votes to force an adoption of the anti-Klan plank in the convention itself. Faced by opposition from the nominal leaders of the platform conference, the anti-Klan faction served formal notice they would force the convention vote upon the issue unless the plank were written into the platform by the conferees. The situation developed into fever heat at night session of the full committee and was climaxed by a verbal clash early this morning between anti-Klan spokesmen and Chairman Cummings. The session virtually broke up in a row with Cummings ruling the spokesmen "out of order."

Scores of party leaders including Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, leader in the senate, Representative Garrett, the house leader, and William J. Bryan, opposed the direct naming of the Klan and urged adoption of a plank strongly upholding the constitutional right of religious liberty. They contend that adoption of a plank specifically condemning the Klan by name would split the Democratic party and inject new issues into the campaign no better as to overshadow the economic and Washington scandal issues upon which a November victory was predicted in the convention's "key note" speech.

As the conferees gathered for the session, there was a general feeling that the anti-Klan plank would be rejected by the "inner circle," restored by the full committee and upheld by the convention.

A second platform fight of major proportions loomed over the league of nations plank. A minority group, led by former Secretary of War Baker and Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, demanded an outright endorsement of American adherence to the league on the same conditions which led to Democratic defeat of 1920. A majority of the conferees and of the full committee as well, were opposed to this plank, favoring merely an endorsement of the league's world court while pushing the league issue into the background "until the proposal can be made non-partisan."

Facing almost certain defeat in the committee sessions, Baker and Glass announced they would force the convention itself to go publicly on record on the league issue. They planned to invoke the last recommendations of Woodrow Wilson, reaffirming his faith in the league. Those who opposed the move, feared that such a fight might result in a convention stampede to the league thus again overshadowing what they maintain to be the "winning issues" of 1924.

A minor conflict also developed over prohibition enforcement plank revolving around a proposal by the ultra dry faction to specifically name the eighteenth amendment. A peaceful settlement was in prospect altho a close vote was expected. The bitterness of the Klan and league fights offered an extraordinary contrast to the unanimity of opinion expressed by the conferees and platform committee members over practically every other issue before the convention. There was an almost unanimous sentiment over the kind of planks to adopt relating to economic agricultural, railroad and labor issues as well as to the sensational Washington scandals of the last ten months.

The conflicting issues in the platform fight, with the rival planks, are as follows—

Ku Klux Klan.
1—Proposal to reaffirm the Democratic party's "devotion to the cardinal principles of freedom contained in the constitution and a declaration that 'no religious test shall ever be required as qualification for any office or position of public trust in the United States.'"

2—A flat condemnation of "secret political societies of any kind whatsoever" and a virtual expulsion from the Democratic party of all such members, with a direct pledge to oppose the activities of the Ku Klux Klan, or any similar organization which undertakes to control or interfere with free political action or due process of law."

League of Nations.
1—A declaration that no effort will be made to enter the United States into the league of nations "until the American people have become convinced that it is no alliance for war" and adherence can be negotiated on a non-partisan basis, with a statement of willingness to accept the "verdict of 1920."

2—Direct reaffirmation of adherence to the league of nations with appropriate reservations and providing that "no force shall be employed in enforcing a league decree and no war declared except by congress."

Prohibition.
1—A declaration in favor of strict enforcement of all laws without direct reference to the prohibition law.

2—A demand for strict enforcement and a plea for "obedience in letter and spirit" of the 18th amendment with a declaration to take the prohibition issue "out of party politics."

3—A wet demand for a national referendum on the prohibition law.

The remaining planks, upon which there was a virtual unanimity of opinion, are as follows—

Woodrow Wilson.
With patriotic pride, the Democratic party again pays high tribute to Woodrow Wilson and points to the splendid achievements of the party under his leadership. In paying homage to its late leader, the party classes Wilson "among the immortals."

Comparison of administrations. The party declares the coming campaign will be decided on the "dominant issues made by existing conditions." It promises to remedy these conditions which are described in detail and relate to high taxation, high tariffs, corruption in the government service and administrative waste.

Honesty in government.
A strong plank scathingly denouncing the Republican administration for its alleged corruption. It calls attention to scandals in the navy department, the department of justice, the interior department and the veterans bureau, with specific mention of Fall, Denby, Daugherty and Forbes—a general condemnation of waste and extravagance in all government departments.

World court.
A declaration that the United States directly adhere to the permanent court of international justice, as established under the auspices of the league of nations.

Four power pact.
The four power pact will be criticized for leaving the United States weak in naval defense, "by stripping the country of its capital ships, while giving Great Britain and Japan superior power in submarines, cruisers, airplanes and auxiliary ships."

Agriculture.
A direct pledge of the Democratic party to "revive and reopen the markets of Europe," with an extension of government aid to co-operative marketing and exportation. A promise to provide a more economical federal credit system and a pledge to adjust transportation costs by reducing freight rates on agricultural raw materials.

Railroads.
A declaration of belief in the "good intentions" of the sponsors of the Esch Cummings law, but a direct denunciation of the act for "having utterly failed to accomplish the purposes."

The law is condemned for having failed to reduce the cost of transportation to improve service, settle labor disputes or proportion earnings between the powerful and weak carriers. A flat declaration that the law must either be amended or repealed.

Freight rates.
A pronouncement in favor of reducing freight rates on bulks, low priced raw commodities, such as agricultural products, coal and ores, and placing higher rates on high priced condensed manufactured articles.

Taxation.
A boast that the new income tax law was a Democratic measure and pointing with pride to the 25 percent reduction on all incomes for the current year. A declaration that the Democratic party by this bill, showed it intended to eliminate taxes on the poor, grant large reductions on moderate incomes and increased taxes upon the multi-millionaire class. A pledge to further reduce all taxes thru economy in government and the elimination of useless government bureaus.

A declaration that the Democratic party "accepts the challenge of President Coolidge" to make the Mellon tax reduction plan an issue in the coming campaign, and a strong denunciation of the Mellon plan.

Tariff.
A pledge to revise the existing tariff law downward in order to open foreign markets to surplus agricultural and manufactured products. A declaration that the Democratic tariff will insure reasonable competition, prevent monopoly and produce a fair revenue.

Conservation.
A pledge to recover the navy's oil reserve—Teapot Dome and Elk Hill reserves—"which were fraudulently or illegally leased" with a complete revision of all legislation relating to the public domain, a declaration in favor of stricter government control and conservation of natural resources, such as coal, iron, oil and timber.

Water power projects.
A declaration that the government shall retain title to its water power projects, with the development of a national super water power system.

Muscle Shoals.
A pronouncement in favor of completing or leasing the Muscle Shoals project for the manufacture of commercial fertilizer at the lowest possible cost for the benefit of the American farmers.

Labor.
A renewed declaration in favor of the eight hour day and six day week, of the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively with adequate legislative provisions for proper sanitation and safety of industrial workers.

Immigration.
A claim to credit for enactment of the new immigration bill with would raise the tax duplicate all of $1,000,000, and council would then have no trouble in raising plenty of money for operating expenses. A tax on real estate he says, is the only fair method of taxation.

"Our action was entirely legal," McDermott said further. "The initiative referendum was adopted for the purpose of being used in just such cases as this. I do not understand why members of council should become so enraged."

A section of law was produced by Attorney McDermott, showing that the city council can ask for a re-appraisal if they desire to do so. A part of Section 5548, Ohio General Code, follows:

"The board of county commissioners of the county, the board of township trustees of a township, the board of education of a school district, the council of a municipal corporation, or 25 taxpayers owners of real property, in a district, may file with the county auditor a petition asking for a re-assessment of the real property or a class thereof in any township, school district or municipal corporation or part thereof."

It goes on to state that if the county auditor refuses to order such a re-assessment, the petitioners may take the appeal to the county board of revision or direct to the tax commission of Ohio.

McDermott's contention that the tax is unjust is supported by an other local citizen who, declared this morning that, because he has four different occupations, his total yearly tax under this ordinance will be $50. He sells real estate, is agent for fire and life insurance, and is a licensed embalmer. For the first named occupation he will be taxed $20 per year, and for the other three, $10 each per year. He insists that this is unreasonable, declaring, for example, that hardware stores, which do ten times as much business in a year as he does, are only asked to pay an annual tax of $10.

Unless court action is started, the ordinance will go into effect in July, and the first collection will be made during the latter half of the same month.

Walsh Boom

an Iowa delegate. They were given with a will. "Ladies and gentlemen," said Harrison "I present you a real Democrat, and the greatest investigator in this country." In a twinkling there was a full fledged demonstration on for the gray-haired, slight, oil prospector in which every state banner on the floor was caught up and paraded.

It looked like a real boom for Walsh—already considered by his friends as a dark horse candidate who will bear considerable watching.

Senator Walsh called for a chair and seated himself on the rostrum, surveying the scene with a smiling interest.

Kansas sent him up a bouquet of sunflowers. After the Walsh demonstration had been in progress for some minutes the marchers got hot and decided to call it off. Walsh himself helped them by pounding his gavel. The promenade returned to their seats and the convention got settled to hear Senator Walsh, "chart the course of Democracy."

Walsh spoke slowly and with great distinctness. He held their attention from the start to the Democrats, he is the man who gave the party one of the issues upon which it will lay great stress in the platform and on the stump in this campaign—the oil scandal.

Tom Taggart, the Indiana leader who is backing Senator Ralston for the nomination, did a good deal of quiet missionary work on the floor of the convention today. He was frankly talking Ralston to them. Between his chats he found time to deny rumors that had percolated into the hall that Senator Ralston was to come to New York in person to refute stories spread by his rivals that he is an "old broken down man."

Walsh's criticism of President Coolidge from trying to "stop" the investigation into members of his cabinet, was warmly applauded.

"Charles the First of England, lost his head for pursuing such tactics toward the British house of commons," Walsh said, "and Calvin Coolidge may profit politically by that example."

This thrust got a great hand.

Good Night Stories

DAVID MEETS A HAPPY NIGHT FLIER.

"WELL, of all things!" exclaimed David out loud as a bird nearly dropped from the sky to his feet, then soared away as quick as a wink. "What kind of a bird is that? I'd like to know. Wonder if it could have been a bat. Oh, dear, I wish—"

"There you go," chuckled a merry voice, and down from the sky tumbled a fluffy bundle. When it landed in the grass at David's feet, he saw Squedee, the merry little elfin from Joyland, smiling up at him. "My goodness, David, but you took me unawares that time! I was just having a time trying to catch up with Daddy Night-hawk, to tell him his wife wanted him."

"Oh, Squedee, is that Daddy Night-hawk?" David cried, watching the night flier sail in and out among the insects around the electric light on the corner. "I thought it couldn't be a bat. But I didn't think of its being a night-hawk. Can I go with you?"

"Certainly," replied Squedee. Quick as a wink, he caught hold of David's hand, and away they sailed after Daddy Night-hawk, Squedee calling at the top of his voice.

Daddy Night-hawk heard him. He sailed down on a limb of the maple, where Squedee and David had stopped to rest.

"Was that you calling me, Squedee?" puffed Daddy Night-hawk.

"Of course it was," laughed Squedee. "David has never heard the pleasure of meeting you or Mama Night-hawk, and as Mama Night-hawk wants you to come home, I brought David with me to deliver the message."

"I guess you thought I was Willy Whippoorwill," laughed Daddy Night-hawk. "We do wear the same colors. But where he wears his band of white on the outer feathers of his tail, I wear mine on just the opposite side near the very end of my forked tail. Where his band is mottled, mine is rather barred. Then, too, the white band across my throat is broader than his and wife wears a buff band instead of a white one. Come along, let's be on our way. I'm sure you'll find it a very good idea to see the very roof of Daddy's barn."

"Was That You Calling Me?"

Mama Night-hawk laughed when David expressed surprise at their living in such a snug place. "My mother," she asked, "were near the electric light, and that's where we'll find most of our food. Insects are plentiful around here. Yes, I build and raise my family where the sun gets a good shine, and the weather is warm and cozy. It helps the hatching of the eggs, too. And she moved over so that David could see the two speckled eggs that lay right out in plain view."

"Where's your nest?" asked the astonished David.

"Oh, we night-hawks and whippoorwills never build nests like other birds. We just lay our eggs in the sun," replied the happy mother, as she settled once more on the eggs. "What's the use of going to the trouble of building? As long as we take care of them, there's no harm done. Now I hope you'll not chase us away from here, for we pay for our place by catching all the mosquitoes we can find."

David's mama called him just then, and promising not to disturb the happy nightfliers, he hurried home and tucked into bed to dream of his new friends.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

We love in others what we lack in ourselves, and would be every thing but what we are.

Self-distrust is the cause of most of our failures. In the assurance of strength there is strength, and they are the weakest, however strong, who have no faith in themselves or their powers.

He who is false to present duty builds a throne in the lion, and will find the flaw when he may have forgotten its cause.

The best that we can do for one another is to exchange our thoughts freely.

Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm.

Mistake, error, is the discipline through which we advance.

Faith is a higher faculty than reason.

Do not think that years leave us, and find us the same.

A cheerful temper will make beauty attractive, knowledge delightful, and wit good natured.

No soul is desolate as long as there is a human being for whom it can feel trust and reverence.

Occasions do not make a man fail, but they show what he is.

Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adelle Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

100 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Way Harry Underwood Staged Madge's Get-Away.

HARRY UNDERWOOD listened attentively as I told him of my reasons for taking Mamie and the fur coats to New York. I saw both wrath and astonishment mirrored in his face as I talked, but when I finished, he suddenly threw back his head and gave one of his hearty roars of laughter. I looked at him in respectful amazement, for tragedy, stark and sordid, had come too near me for laughter, and as he caught my glance he sobered instantly.

"Forgive me," he said contritely, although he could not wholly suppress the twinkle in his eye, "but there is something a bit morbid in the idea of a darling little Puritan like you trailing across the country with stolen furs and that plaster-faced chimpanzee of a girl in your car."

"I fall to see anything humorous in the situation," I began, with resentful primness, but with his quizzical eyes upon me I found it impossible to remain indignant or even serious, especially as the ludicrous side of my adventure had insistently presented itself to me from the beginning. Accordingly, after a little struggle with my dignity, I found the relief for my nerves in laughter which otherwise would have come from tears.

A Sudden Transition.

"There! That's better!" Mr. Underwood said approvingly, and I suddenly saw that he had deliberately staged his mirth in order to ward off possible hysteria on my part. The knowledge made me grateful, and a bit ashamed of my pettishness. With a sudden impulse I held out my hand.

"I am afraid I haven't appeared very grateful," I said, looking up at him.

He took the hand in both of his and looked down at me with reproach, half-laughing, half-serious, in his eyes.

"How often have I told you not to look at me like that! I demand of you, I warn you, there'll be serious consequences some day when you lift those long-lashed lamps in my direction, with that grateful expression in them. I know you don't mean one-tenth what the orbs say, but I'm mighty likely to forget everything but the look. So be careful. Have you any of your baggage up here?"

The last sentence was as prosaic as the rest of his speech had been romantic. The quick change, however, did not escape me, and I was going to the sudden transition and quick to seize the cue he tossed me.

"Not even my purse," I responded demurely.

He muttered an expletive, then turned to the elevator and said, "Wait here a minute," he said. "I'll be right back."

"The Chief" Gives Orders.

"Oh!" I exclaimed with involuntary reluctance to be left alone again, and he whirled around with a searching look at me.

"I'm a fine thoughtless beast!" he ejaculated. "Come along, of course."

That he understood the mechanism of the elevator was plain, and in another minute we had made the descent to the lower floor, and had emerged into a large room lined with cars in various stages of repair, evidently the ostensible workshop of the garage.

A man I had not seen before was bending over one of the cars as it sat at work, but at our entrance he came rapidly toward us, and I deduced that he was Harry Underwood's special "Pete." Mr. Underwood's voice was genial yet peremptory, "go in the front there and tell those guys to bring everything belonging to this lady in here, including that girl. Have them fill up her car and mine with gas, oil and water. I'll take this lady into the city in my roadster, and you'll follow just behind me and the baggage. I don't think the girl will make any trouble. If she does, just hook three times, and I'll be with you. Tell Ed to come back here with the girl and the baggage. Make everything snappy. We're going to get out of here in five minutes or less. Put everybody on the job."

"Get you," the man replied laconically, and walked rapidly into the front of the garage. It was but a few seconds before Mamie stalked stolidly into the big room, escorted by the man to whom she had waved, who carried the suitcases, one in either hand.

"I'll hold you responsible, Ed, if these have been opened," Mr. Underwood said sternly.

"Don't, chief, nobody's touched 'em," the man replied earnestly. "I've had my eye on 'em all the time."

"That's a good thing," retorted Mr. Underwood. "But it will do no harm to take a look, anyway. Or are you locked?"

He turned to me inquiringly.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

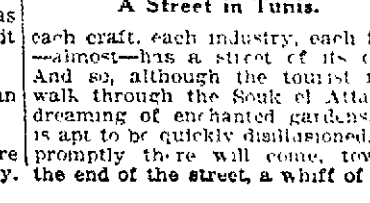

WHERE PERFUME SHOPS HAVE A STREET TO THEMSELVES.

A STREET of Perfumes? What an alluring, enchanting, enticing place such a street should be—especially when it is to be found in a land not far from where Cleopatra lived and charmed in the land of precious herbs and fragrant flowers! There is a Souk el Attarine in Tunis with shop after shop devoted to the most precious perfumes in the world.

But there is also a street of leather, a street of pottery, to say nothing of a street of food. For in Tunis is a souk where the streets are either Jewesses, Arabians or Mohammedan of the lower classes. For Mohammedan women of the upper classes remain hidden in the seclusion of their homes.

Girls are permitted to roam about the streets as they will until they are thirteen. At this age they take the Mohammedan veil, and are allowed very little freedom.

The women of the middle classes who are forced by circumstances to do their own shopping always wear dark, heavy veils, and not only hide themselves from the view of the world, but shut out the world from their own view.

CLARA MORRIS ASKS YOU TO SAY

Is Dinner a Rite or a Burden?

If any person cares particularly to have me rise up and call him blessed, let that person explain the difference between the attitude of woman and the attitude of man toward dinner.

I doubt whether there is a nation on earth where men fail to give dinner great and discriminating consideration. But I think with our English-speaking men, British and American, dinner is a grand passion. Birth, marriage, death, dinner—all important powers or functions. Yet of these four any man will declare dinner the greatest, inasmuch as it is the crowning function of each day of his life.

Of course, diners must be divided into two great groups: Those who must eat to live, and that other group who live to eat and eat to eat. But whoever has been able to place a single woman in that group? Generally speaking, a woman takes food in an impatient effort to head off the irritating, work-delaying pangs of hunger that utter neglect will surely incite. Whoever heard of a feminine gourmet, a woman epicure with the senses of taste and smell cultivated to the highest degree possible? No, it's only the man who enthrones his soul in his stomach, and only he can bring his palate and his soul into perfect and rapturous accord.

One Word in Fire

There is an old tradition coming down from monkish days that for our dearest sins our own guilty hands braid the scourge for self-flagellation in the day of accounting. And here is a story that at least suggests corroboration as late as the Victorian era. One who was my friend of friends, though many years my elder, an editor of nation-wide repute, had in his middle twenties acted as secretary to the American legation in Paris. Like the rest of the world, he was at the feet of the greatest novelist of the day. The whole-hearted, enthusiastic devotion of the young American seemed to touch the embittered, notoriously unhappy great man and he unbent and condescended greatly to him, and on the night of what was then called "a stag banquet," a farewell to Paris friends, Bulwer-Lytton, as host, lifted the American to dizzy heights by placing him at his left hand at table. Amazingly, my friend noted that though course after course had come and gone, the host had received no service of any kind—that the battery of wine glasses semi-circling his plate were all reversed save one, with which he made great play. When tongues were all loose and laughter ran crackling about the table the host murmured a word to his own man who stood

Watch the Tell-Tale Points of Beauty

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

THE culture of beauty has come less and less to mean the carrying on of secret processes, which are supposed to be known only to the initiated. Woman who seeks beauty, and her advisers who help them find it, all realize that health is the prime factor, and that health must exist before permanent beauty can be obtained.

Everyone who makes a specialty of beauty culture realizes that beauty must be obtained through health, and the regular beauty houses require of their clients a thorough medical diagnosis if they are to make a regular course of treatment. Such beauty houses are in charge of graduate nurses who direct the beauty treatments.

Now what I want to impress upon the average woman in the home is that she can learn to care for her beauty perfectly if she will but try. For instance, she should know that the elbows, the wrists and the throat are considered the tell-tale points of woman's beauty.

Knowing this, she should leave no effort unmade to care for her elbows and wrists and throat so that she can be proud of the beauty results that she derives.

And the best and quickest way to keep these points in the beauty condition of which you can be proud, is by using skin food often and generously.

So many women care for the beauty of their faces, giving them every care and attention, and thinking of them early and late. They spend so much time on their faces that they forget all about what they consider the minor points, such as elbows and wrists and throat.

Now this is a great mistake. When you rub beauty-giving skin food into your face at night, do not let your beauty attentions stop here. Take a small bit of skin food on the tips of your fingers, bend your arm

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am twenty-eight years old and have been going with a man thirty years old for six years. He comes to see me every night and stays until 11 or 12 o'clock, but he never says anything of marriage and when I say anything, he says he isn't ready—that if he were ready to marry he would just as soon marry me as anybody. You should have been going out with other men all these years, for this man may have no intention of marrying you.

DOLLY: If the man hasn't made up his mind after monopolizing your time for six years, I don't think you ought to permit him to take up so much of your time and thought in the future. Continue the friendship if you wish, but do not regard him seriously as a friend and go out with others. You should have been going out with other men all these years, for this man may have no intention of marrying you.

YOUR HEALTH

A Few Fracture Facts You Ought to Know Well

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

VACATION time is upon us and with its advent there will be sprains and bruises, cuts and tears, and even broken bones.

The quest for a certain apple, a bunch of cherries, a hen's nest in the haymow and all the other innumerable things young people feel they must have or do, are some of the reasons for vacation accidents.

Space does not permit me to give at great length much information about fractures. But I do want to speak about the more commonly met fractures and their treatment.

There are simple, compound, green-stick, comminuted, impacted and many other kinds of fractures.

The first three are the most commonly found.

A simple fracture is one where the break in the bone is complete or the bone is broken into two distinct parts.

A compound fracture is one where there may be more than one break and one end of the bone may be pushed through the flesh.

A green-stick fracture, as its name implies, is an incomplete fracture. You know how a green stick will break at one side and not all the way through. So it is with this kind of fracture.

My idea is to give you a knowledge of these more common fractures so that you will understand what to do in case of necessity.

In nearly all cases of fracture inability to use the limb, pain and swelling are the most common symptoms.

The first thing to do in any case of fracture is to give immediate support to the injured member. If an arm is fractured, support it with a sling made of a triangular-shaped piece of muslin. If a leg is the unlucky member, tie it fast to an umbrella, several rolls of newspaper, a cane or any other article which will give support.

Whether the injured person has a fracture of the skull, or the ankle or any other kind of fracture, remember to be careful while transporting him to the doctor or home. Many simple fractures have had serious results because of lack of care in moving the patient. This is especially true in a compound fracture, where one end of the bone protrudes through the skin.

Whenever possible have the doctor come to the injured person. He will use his knowledge and skill in binding the broken limb. Adhesive tape, splints, bandages and dressings will be supplied by the doctor.

Every household should have a supply of these things on hand in case of emergency. Better to keep such articles for years and never use them than to need them once and not have them.

Answers to Health Questions

M. H. Q.—Is it possible to determine the presence of gall-stones with an X-ray?

2.—Is an operation for gall-stones as serious as an appendicitis operation?

3.—Would a lack of iodine in the system cause a goitre?

4.—Is there any way to cure a goitre besides an operation?

A.—Yes, in some instances.

2.—This depends entirely upon the individual case.

3.—Yes, but this may be helped by medication properly prescribed.

4.—It is possible to cure certain types of goitre without an operation.

R. O. B. Q.—What is a good soap for the skin?

A.—Castile soap is very good for the skin.

G. E. W. Q.—Will shampooing the hair once a week with a whole raw egg have a tendency to turn the hair gray, or will an egg injure the hair in any way?

A.—No, this will not injure the hair, but it would be better to use just the white of the egg.

A. J. Q.—I always use a good vanishing cream on my face before putting powder on, but still my nose always looks chapped, also my face. How can I remedy this condition?

A.—You should use a good, pure soap and be sure to dry the face thoroughly after washing it.

ARE RUM RUNNERS USING SUBMARINES?

MYSTERIOUS SUBMARINES.

For some time past vague rumors have been circulating through New York's underworld that a Brooklyn man, recognized as the "King of Rum Runners," who handles only "1,000 case lots," was actually using two submarines to make daily trips to Rum Row, 15 miles off the Jersey coast, and bring in his illicit cargoes. Pilot E. P. Loft and Photographer J. A. Smith have been taking aerial photographs of Croton Point, on the Hudson River, for the Westchester County Park Commission. This photograph, taken from a height of 5,500 feet, reveals what appears to be two submarines running just under the surface of the water. They were moving against the tide and could not, therefore, have been waterlogged logs. The Navy Department has announced officially that there were no naval submarines in the river, and that none would have been allowed to submerge there, anyway, because of the danger of being rammed by surface vessels.

DAWES ON DEMAGOGY

CHARLES G. DAWES makes it plain that he has no sympathy for insincere advocates in politics. The Republican nominee for Vice-President, speaking recently at Evanston to a group of neighbors and friends who had gathered to felicitate him on the honor his party had conferred, was neither Republican nor Democrat in what he said, but truly American.

In assailing demagoguery in public life he was doing a service of the first importance to good government. No close observer can doubt, as he said, that many times "the real facts and the economic principles involved in questions of national policy are continually obscured." For that the blame must be placed largely on those politicians intent on promoting individual or group interests.

Appeals to passions and prejudices, rather than to reason and common sense, have been, as Mr. Dawes asserted, responsible for much of Europe's difficulty since the world war. Persons, almost solely intent on gaining or retaining preferment for themselves or their friends, have not scrupled to misrepresent or hide the truth.

In so doing they inevitably injured their own country as much, or more, than they did their neighbors. Now, brought "to the very brink of the abyss," because of this perversion of the instruments of free government, the continent, so Mr. Dawes thinks, "has abandoned the demagogue and returned to common sense."

What has been going on across the Atlantic is, although we like to believe on a lesser scale, prevalent in the United States.

What is needed, of course, is not unanimous agreement on any course that may be proposed. There is room for sincere and intelligent difference of opinion on many subjects, and a great mistake is made when the term demagoguery is applied indiscriminately.

But good citizens ought, as Mr. Dawes said, "to unite to demand from those who represent us in political debate that they present our differences honestly and from the standpoint of truth," even though the truth at times be disagreeable. It is not unusual to have one doctrine preached in one community and another in a different locality by representatives of the same party, and, in fact, sometimes by the same speakers. No scorn is too great for those that are guilty.

Altogether admirable is Mr. Dawes's conception of the ideal that should guide. His condemnation is not of any particular party, but of elements that are found in all. He urges not a degraded partisanship, nor expediency for the sake of possible victory, but a holding to fundamentals and the framing of policies in accord. In that, and that alone, lies the perpetuity of efficient institutions in a democratic nation.

HIGH FUNCTION, POOR PAY

THE action of the Presbyterian General Assembly in providing a new pension plan for ministers is sound in theory, and will work in practice if the individual churches accept it. There is no charity involved, and the idea of charity would be more humiliating to the church than to the ministers, since the ministers themselves contribute to the fund.

Slowly all the churches are awakening to a responsibility and duty too long neglected. The pity is that the pay of the educational and spiritual leaders of the world is so inadequate. If, as we contend, the teacher and the preacher form the first line of defense for the republic there is little to be said for the gratitude of republicans.

Certainly they were the backbone of the nation in the early days. Then there was a keener appreciation of the part they played in the molding of the destiny of a people. The schoolhouse in the valley and the church on the hill—these meant more than arsenals and forts; and in the long view they mean more now. But as we have grown in materialism we have developed a contemptuous neglect of the teacher and the preacher and a first-class window washer gets the greater reward.

It is to be hoped that in time they will be paid enough to put them beyond the need of pensions.

SIGNER "APOLOGIZES"

Editor, The Tribune:

Here is where I make my humble apologies to the members of city council as being one of the black 10 percent.

Gentlemen, I bow in humility before your superior wisdom. I offer you my humble apologies for having dared to question your infallible wisdom. I even apologized to you, gentlemen, for being capable of writing my name on the referendum petition.

Up until last night, gentlemen, we thought you men were on an equality with us and as such we criticized you in your official capacity. But we were mistaken. We have it from your own lips that we do not know, we do not understand and that you—members of city council—do know and that it is outrageous and criminal for us common people to question your wisdom by signing a referendum petition.

Let me here suggest to the other 575 black signers of this referendum that as a penance for daring to exercise the American privilege in signing a referendum petition against an official measure of the present city council that for a period of thirty days when we meet one or any of these members that we remove our hats and pass them heads bowed as a sign of regret that we dared question the wisdom of those who can do no wrong.

Without daring in any way to question your wisdom, gentlemen, let me say this to you.

When you say we do not understand this tax law you say well. But when I say to you that you do not understand this or any other tax measure in its political and social significance, I speak a solemn and melancholy truth. That this municipality is in dire financial straits is not laid at the door of the present city council by any thinking person.

If this city during your term of office had gone to the financial bow-wows by your failing to pass this tax measure no finger of reproach could have been pointed at you. I do not have one word of censure because you passed it. You were trying honestly to relieve a desperate situation. But your medicine is worse than the disease if it becomes more than a nuisance.

WALT MASON

GOOD WORK

Pete Pringle toiled for many years; he made silk purses of sow's ears, and seldom took a rest; his purses were in great demand, and it was said throughout the land, these purses were the best. And people sometimes said to Pete, "You have a plant that can't be beat—why not make other things? The wooden nutmeg graft is fine, and you could turn out hams of pine, and pewter wedding rings." "I don't believe," old Pete replied, "in spreading out a graft so wide; no scheme like that endures; make one commodity so fine there is no equal in its line, and then the world is yours. My purses made of porkers ears are known in seven hemispheres, wherever men have kale; they're found at home, they're found abroad, wherever mankind has a wad my purses are on sale. When men buy purses they exclaim, Pete Pringle's have the highest fame, they've held their own for years; before his skill the whole world bows; he only uses 'tamworth sows,' which have the choicest ears." He does one thing and does it well, and now we see him calmly dwell in opulence and ease; he has his shack in Easy Street, and he has custard pies to eat, and shrimp and dried peas. And many wights who tried to spread their graft too wide are poorly fed on soubones, staw and bran; they're no umbrellas when it pours, they have to sleep on cellar doors, and dodge the peeler man.

Here is where I make my humble apologies to the members of city council as being one of the black 10 percent.

Gentlemen, I bow in humility before your superior wisdom. I offer you my humble apologies for having dared to question your infallible wisdom. I even apologized to you, gentlemen, for being capable of writing my name on the referendum petition.

Up until last night, gentlemen, we thought you men were on an equality with us and as such we criticized you in your official capacity. But we were mistaken. We have it from your own lips that we do not know, we do not understand and that you—members of city council—do know and that it is outrageous and criminal for us common people to question your wisdom by signing a referendum petition.

Let me here suggest to the other 575 black signers of this referendum that as a penance for daring to exercise the American privilege in signing a referendum petition against an official measure of the present city council that for a period of thirty days when we meet one or any of these members that we remove our hats and pass them heads bowed as a sign of regret that we dared question the wisdom of those who can do no wrong.

Without daring in any way to question your wisdom, gentlemen, let me say this to you.

When you say we do not understand this tax law you say well. But when I say to you that you do not understand this or any other tax measure in its political and social significance, I speak a solemn and melancholy truth. That this municipality is in dire financial straits is not laid at the door of the present city council by any thinking person.

If this city during your term of office had gone to the financial bow-wows by your failing to pass this tax measure no finger of reproach could have been pointed at you. I do not have one word of censure because you passed it. You were trying honestly to relieve a desperate situation. But your medicine is worse than the disease if it becomes more than a nuisance.

LAWRENCE'S LETTER

Harrison's Keynote Speech Denounces Republican Actions and Calls Attention to Democratic War Administration

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 25.—Pat Harrison, senator from Mississippi, disciple of Woodrow Wilson and the chief haranguer of the Democratic party in the senate, opened the presidential campaign of 1924 today by proclaiming the issues upon which the candidate nominated here and the Democratic brethren generally will seek to turn the Republicans out of power.

No political speech in recent years compares with it either in bitterness of invective or penetrating satire, no speech has even been fashioned like it unless it be the denunciation of the Wilson administration made by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge at Chicago in 1920 or a few weeks later at Marion, Ohio.

What Representative Burton's keynote speech at Cleveland lacked in partisan fire is supplied in great abundance in Senator Harrison's relentless retorts to the Republican platform of 1924. The keynote speech here, however, is exactly what the Democrats wanted. For several days copies of it have been in circulation and from every quarter have come expressions of deep satisfaction with the document as almost a platform in itself.

If there has been doubt that the Democratic party would go to the court at Albert B. Fall, still free on his ranch, that doubt has been removed. If there has been any doubt that the Democrats would point accusingly to the quick work of the department of justice in indicting Senator Wheeler of Montana while no effort was made to indict Albert B. Fall, that doubt too has been removed.

Corruption in the government under the Republican regime and a challenge to anyone to point to a single case of corruption by any high official or member of congress of Democratic affiliation may be said to be the basis of Senator Harrison's whole appeal. Whatever Mr. McAdoo did in his relations of lawyer to client happened after he left public office. The Mississippi senator takes credit for the Democratic party for the exposure of Albert B. Fall's record as secretary of the interior and the driving out of office of the secretary of the navy and the attorney general. He asks the Republican party to look up what its 51 investigating committees found in connection with the Democratic administration during the war.

Apart from the Teapot Dome scandal which is not to be allowed to slumber, Senator Harrison reveals the plan of the party leaders to make political capital out of the Mellon tax plan. They welcome the plea of President Coolidge for the Mellon plan and utilize again the argument that more taxpayers are benefitted under the Democratic plan fathered by Senator Simmons of North Carolina and Representative five Carnes of Texas than would have been the case had the Mellon plan been adopted.

Mostly it was an old fashioned political speech with all sorts of dagger-throwing in the hope of dividing the Republican party. Caustic references to the fact that Senator Borah refused to join Coolidge as a running mate, and to the effort at Cleveland to punish the friends of the soldier bonus were not omitted by Senator Harrison who showed himself a master of Catalinian satire.

Candidacies have been for the moment forgotten. Sensitive to the inner currents of the convention and the menace of possible friction because of the factional differences that have arisen, Senator Harrison made a plea for party harmony. His eulogy of Woodrow Wilson was in itself an appeal for a reunion of all elements in the party in a common cause.

"It would seem now," he concluded, "we can hear the soft voice of sweet reasonableness coming to us from Monticello, the voice of Old Hickory coming across the blue ridge from the Hermitage, and from that historic crypt at St. Albans we hear the mighty voice of Woodrow Wilson, wistfully calling to us: 'To you, from failing hands we throw the torch. Hold it high. Hold it high. Carry on, carry on; keep the faith; keep the faith.'"

Smiles

NEW SUMMER CLASSES
Will start June 23 and June 30. We have three excellent instructors and the largest enrollment we have ever had at one time. The citizens here have given us every consideration, and are boosting for this school. We do not have a single graduate out of employment at this time. We do not claim all the credit for this, but we feel that we should share the credit with our business men, who seem so anxious for the growth of our school. Nothing is more necessary for a successful life than a trained mind. Better enter on one of the above dates.

PRE-PRIMARY PLANK WILL BRING FIGHT
COLUMBUS, O., June 25.—A stiff fight on the proposed pre-primary convention plank loomed as the Republican state platform convention met in Memorial hall today for its second day's session. Members of the resolutions committee, which started functioning late last night with James T. Boggs, Sandusky, at its head, indicated early today the pre-primary convention plank will be embodied in the proposed state platform to be submitted to the convention some time before noon. Nearly all of the Republican candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, on hand for the convention give evidence early tending to the belief that they will oppose the pre-primary convention plank. While sponsors of the proposed plank were confident this morning the plank will be adopted, they nevertheless admitted the inadvisability of going to the extreme suggested by L. B. Faiver, Elyria, member of the committee from the fourth district, who offered a second proposal which would eliminate the primary. This proposal was not expected to reach the convention floor.

BAKER PLANS STAMPEDE TO COX OF OHIO
NEW YORK, June 25.—Details of a carefully laid bid of strategy by which former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker is expected to try to stampede the national Democratic convention for ex-Governor Cox of Ohio, leaked out today from the Buckeye delegation's headquarters. Baker, according to these reports, intends to sweep the Wilson enthusiasts off their feet by reading a letter never made public, from the former president to Cox, in which Mr. Wilson is described as saying that Cox was the only outstanding member of the Democratic party with courage to stand up for the Wilsonian doctrines foreign and domestic, without reservation.

RADIO STATIONS GIVEN CALL LETTERS
Call Letters Are for Identification of Station
BY CARLTON E. BUTLER

Every radio station, either broadcasting or code, uses a call letter to distinguish it from other stations. There is a great deal of misunderstanding as to the origin and the reason for call letters. In the first place it would be a considerable waste of time if each ship or station would have to give its name, owner, and location every time an announcement was made or a message was transmitted. In place of this three letters alone are given which identifies the station. In the early days of radio the stations were so few that a two letter call was sufficient. A few of the stations still use the old two letter call such as FL, Paris. The number of stations soon became so numerous that there were not enough two letter calls to go around and three letter calls were necessary. Now a point has been reached where all of the three letter combinations will not suffice for the number of stations operating, so four letter calls are used by some countries. The call letters are allotted to the various nations by the International Radiotelegraphic Convention, and no attempt has been made to have the calls correspond with the first letter of the nation to which the calls have been assigned, such as C for Canada, U for United States and so on, although they may do so in some cases. In the same manner the call letters of an individual station are in no way connected with the initials of the firm or owner of the station as is often popularly supposed. The broadcasting call letters are allotted to the various stations by the government out of the combination of letters that have been assigned to this nation. Copyright 1924 by the S. N. L. New Party Meeting May Aid LaFollette's Plans
Conference for Progressive Political Action July 4 at Cleveland to Fight for Proposals of Senator

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The drive in behalf of Senator Robert M. LaFollette for the Presidency at the United States will receive considerable impetus July 4 from the convention of the Conference for Progressive Political Action at Cleveland, Ohio. LaFollette was one of the organizers of this conference, dominated to a great extent by the railroad labor unions, which succeeded a year ago in electing to Congress a number of the candidates which it endorsed and which now M. LaFollette for the Presidency at the United States will receive considerable impetus July 4 from the convention of the Conference for Progressive Political Action at Cleveland, Ohio. The headquarters of the Conference for the Progressive Political Action is in Washington, and its chairman is William M. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, one of the leading railroad unions. Arthur L. Hilder, secretary of the conference, is in charge of plans for the Cleveland convention, and he is being flooded with requests for credentials from scores of farmers' organizations, labor unions and other groups which are disappointed with Government as is. The pot-shot which Senator LaFollette took at the "communist convention" in St. Paul has added to the prestige of the Conference for Progressive Political Action and increased its importance as a factor in this year's Presidential Campaign. "It is the business of the conference," says an official statement from its headquarters, "to see that the protest of the millions of citizens against the enslavement of the American people to a predatory financial despotism be made articulate. We propose to voice this protest now and to continue to voice it until that despotism shall be removed. "In the Congressional campaign of 1922 the conference secured a balance of power in Congress. This has worked to the people's benefit. The issue now is the election of a majority in Congress. In every Congressional District, and in every State where a Senator is to be chosen, the Progressives will have an active candidate, pledged to democracy in government as against special privilege ownership of government. "We have proven that a balance of power in Congress is not enough to secure constructive legislation. That was shown in the struggle for the Howell-Barkley Railroad Labor bill and the fight for the Norris-Sinclair Farm Relief bill. In the present House we have seen the balance of power turned by a large group of ignorant and indifferent individuals in both parties, when issues arose between reactionaries and progressives. The battle to win a progressive majority in the Sixty-ninth Congress is a battle for every constructive principle for which we have organized the people's force." Among the planks in the platform of the Conference are: 1. Repeal of the Esch-Cummings act, and for public ownership of railroads, with democratic operation. 2. Abolition of the "tyranny and usurpation of the courts, including the practice of nullifying Acts of Congress and of State Legislatures." 3. Abolition of injunctions in labor disputes and of the power to punish for contempt of court without trial by jury. 4. Adequate laws creating a government marketing corporation to establish a direct route between farm producer and city consumer and to assure farmers fair prices for their products, and to protect consumers against profiteers in foodstuffs. 5. Public ownership and development of the nation's waterpower and creation of a public superpower system. 6. Reconstruction of the Federal Reserve System to provide for direct public control of the nation's money and credit, and legislation to permit and promote co-operative banking. 7. International action by the United States to outlaw war, and abolition of profit in the manufacture of this country's war materials. One can almost imagine that it is the voice of Senator LaFollette speaking when officers of the Conference outline their political views and hopes for the future. Referring to the Republican and lessness of the major fight. McAdoo is fighting grimly to hold his undeniable lead. In half a dozen states where his margin of control is slight, the Smith managers, the Davis boomers and the Ralston contingent are engaged in a desperate struggle for his delegates, but followed up this admitted today they have lost a few delegates, but followed up this admission quickly with the claim that their losses have been more than offset by some converts made in the camps of their rivals. Npt alone a McAdoo-Smith deadlock seemed inevitable today, but developments point also to a Davis-Ralston deadlock once the leaders have run their race. While asserting their confidence that they have McAdoo "stopped," the leaders of the anti-McAdoo coalition nevertheless are uneasy. They concede him almost half of the convention and they are wary of the strategy that might conceivably turn the half into two-thirds. McAdoo's handlers have laid their plans for a quick and snappy decision. They plan to make the third ballot the pivotal point in their effort to go over. They want about 400 votes on the first ballot. They want 500 by the third and from that point onward they are going to throw every ounce of reserve strength into the scales for a nomination, if possible, by the seventh. Smith's plans are not radically different, except that, being more certain of their bedrock strength, they are not going to try for such an early decision. The Davis movement, which is making undeniable headway, appeared today to be running into the same obstacle that the Smith drive has encountered. This is the stone wall opposition of William Jennings Bryan, the three-time nominee of the party. Bryan is militant against Smith, because of his alleged "wetness." He is just as militant against Davis because of the former ambassador's Wall-st connections. The fight on the two-thirds nominating rule was not entirely dead today—only slumbering.

Read Them!

1. Powerful main wheel revolves on hard steel roller bearings and ball bearings at both ends.
2. Three sides main frame forged from one piece of steel strengthened on corners by malleable brackets.
3. Reel driven direct from countershaft—an all gear driven reel.
4. Self aligning bearings throughout — no pinched bearing to cause hard draft.
5. Rear main chain drives only platform and elevator canvasses and butter, insuring equal distribution of power.
6. Guards and sections heavy and strong.
7. Both elevator aprons are driven from the upper rollers. This brings the tight sides of the aprons in contact with the grain and prevents chocking.
8. Large 5-inch lower roller of upper elevator comes in contact with the grain before it reaches lower elevator—prevents choking in heavy grain.
9. Apron tighteners simplest and most practical in use—simply turn a lever. No springs or parts to wear out.
10. Anti-grain and weed winding washers prevent winding on rollers. Rollers always run free and easy.
11. Triangular one-piece driving arm for binding attachment displaces shafts, gears, chains and cams—nothing to get out of order.—cannot be put on wrong.
12. Binding attachment supported by two pipes—the strongest made.
13. Knotter is the simplest and surest type. Relation of tying parts cannot be changed.
14. Roller twine tension eliminates twine trouble.
15. Bill hook roller runs on a chilled track—prevents cutting out of the cam.
16. Packer always leads the needle, makes easier work.
17. Bundle may be tied from 7 1/2 to 25 1/2 inches from the butts.
18. Twine holding disc is driven by a single shaft and pinion—always works perfectly and will outlast others.
19. Eye of the needle has a hard steel block—twine will not cut the needle.
20. Extra drop leaves save grain—furnished as regular equipment.
